

STEINWAY PIANOS

INCOMPARABLE SOUND
MATCHLESS QUALITY ♦ TIMELESS BEAUTY

In an era when skilled craftsmanship is an exception rather than the rule, the grand tradition of Steinway® Piano quality still flourishes. Since 1853 when Heinrich E. Steinway founded Steinway & Sons in New York City—and still to this day, his instruments have remained the benchmark for the way a piano should look, feel and sound.

Generation after generation, Steinway's exacting standards and commitment to excellence have not been compromised. While maintaining and ever-perfecting the original pianomakers' handcrafting art, ceaseless experimentation and innovation has kept Steinway on the cutting edge. To have such an instrument at your fingertips is an exceptional experience.

In keeping with their belief that the precious gift of music should not be reserved for just a privileged few, Steinway introduced two moderately priced pianos bearing the names Boston® and Essex®.

Steinway-designed Boston Pianos have established their own reputation for fine quality and value and have been embraced by musicians, teachers, students and music enthusiasts.

The Essex Piano is built with a completely new Steinway scale design, elegantly reminiscent of the 1920s golden age of pianos. It is remarkably affordable and sets new performance standards for comparably priced pianos, while delivering the unmistakable touch and sound of a Steinway.
